Jackson considers running in 1996

Darlene Superville
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- Two-time presidential candidate Jesse Jackson said Thursday he's thinking anew about running in 1996 now that retired Gen. Colin Powell has ruled out a potential White House bid.

Less than 24 hours after Powell announced he would not run, Jackson said at a news conference that he has met with his advisers over the past few days to "assess the landscape."

"I still have the fire in my belly and clear vision in my head about what a president ought to do to make the nation better," said the founder of the National Rainbow Coalition and presidential candidate of 1984 and 1988.

"I have a plan to revitalize our economy to make us more fiscally responsible, to change our priorities, to make us more humane," he said.

Jackson said it was premature to say when he would reach a decision.

While criticizing what he said was Clinton's inattention to urban issues, Jackson suggested he would stay on the political sidelines if the president begins to pay more attention to cities and racial inequities.

Jackson said it would be difficult for him to run in the Democratic primaries

Police investigate sexual assaults

Number of fall semester rapes reported by students continues

Lee Buse and Joe Boyle
The BG News

City and campus police are working to resolve the rash of alleged rapes that have been reported since the beginning of fall classes.

Thirteen incidents have been reported as rapes in the city and on campus since the beginning of the semester. Four of these involved attackers who were not known by the victims.

So far this semester, police have handled three reported rapes on campus, at least one of which was an acquaintance rape. The suspect in the acquaintance rape, which occurred in Harshman, was later revealed to police by the victim.

The latest incident, which is still under investigation, involved a Macdonald West resident who said she was raped in Founders Hall last week. She was taken to Wood County Hospital. A residence hall director notified University police of the incident.

The other incident involved a female student who was pulled into a vehicle by two assailants, raped, and later returned to campus.

Of the 10 city rapes, seven have been acquaintance, or "date rapes." Of those, one was found to be "unfounded." In another case, the victim did not want to pursue charges, but just wanted a report on file.

City police found another case difficult to investigate because the victim knew the name of her attacker but did not want to reveal it to police, according to a recent police report.

In two of the date rape cases, the alleged rapists have been arrested and are awaiting trial and sentencing.

The three remaining rapes are what police classify as "attacker or stalker rapes." All three of these rapes remain unsolved, according to the latest police reports.

Bowling Green Police Detective Ken Fortney said these rapes were committed by "at least two different people, maybe three."

However, since all three of the victims were under the influence of alcohol, police have said it is difficult for them to put together an accurate profile of any of the attackers.

In at least one case, the victim could not recall anything about her attacker, according to a police report. Police are still actively investigating the rapes, however, according to Lt. Tom Brokamp.

Major Tom Votava said the increase in reported rapes this year can in part be attributed to a better understanding of the crime.

"I think a lot of it is better education and the destigmatization of the rape victim, and being able to go to the hospital after a rape, since the hospitals are required to report rape victims," he said.

Barbara Waddell, public information officer for University Police, said city and campus police have been working together on these cases.

"We usually work closely on these cases, with regards to sharing information and things of that nature," Waddell said.

Some safety improvements of residence halls are in the works or have recently been put in place by the Student Housing and Residence Programs.

These recent improvements include crime alerts and flyers regarding personal safety, which have been posted in residence halls and fraternity and sorority houses.

Also, student night clerk coverage in residence halls has been increased to cover deficiencies in the operation, according to Mike Vetter, director of Student Housing and Residence Programs.

Student campus security officers, which previously only assisted in securing academic buildings, are now helping to secure residence halls as well, Vetter said.

In addition, the Campus Escort Service has expanded its hours. It will now stay open from dusk until 6 a.m. Sunday through Friday, and 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. on Saturday.

Recent reports of sexual assaults on campus and in the city have raised concerns among many students. The University has many resources and individuals available to help people who are victims of sexual assaults.

When a student is assaulted in a residence hall, it is often the student's residential advisor that has the first contact with the victim.

Speaker recalls Nazi horrors

Holocaust survivor talks of fleeing German army, hiding in hayloft

Jim Barker
The BG News

Erna Gorman spent much of her early childhood listening to the sound of marching boots and gunshots.

Born in the French town of Metz in 1934, Gorman spent her childhood hiding under the floorboards in a Nazi-controlled ghetto apartment and later, languishing as a fugitive in the hayloft of a German farmer.

Gorman spoke to a near-capacity crowd at Lenhart Grand Ballroom Thursday, recounting her experiences as a Jewish child trying to survive the Holocaust.

Gorman lived from age five to age 12 being driven from one Jewish ghetto to the next, where she witnessed firsthand Nazi atrocities perpetrated upon Jews of all ages, including infants and the elderly.

Gorman was driven from her childhood town of Metz to a Nazi-run ghetto in the Ukraine, where her father disappeared for a period of weeks. He returned some sixty pounds lighter with a shaved head, having been forced to participate in a Nazi work detail burying the bodies of dead Jews. Some of the corpses, he was later to recall, were those of relatives and friends.

It was a miracle that saved her and her family from death in the concentration camps, Gorman said. A German farmer, citing his Christian beliefs and an obligation to help stop the taking of human lives, led the Gorman family away from the ghetto and allowed them to hide in his barn for the next two years.

According to Gorman, the months she spent huddled in the cramped hayloft without exercise or sunlight nearly ruined her mind permanently. "There was no fresh air, no windows. We got to see daylight only in the mornings, when my sister and I would walk to the door side by side to see if everything was clear," she said.

"By the second year, I couldn't even stand up. I would look at one bale of hay for an entire day. My mind was gone, I had lost my speech and my language," Gorman said.

Gorman said she remembers Joseph Schwammberger, an S.S. captain and commander of the Rozwadena ghetto, who was renowned for his love of killing Jews.

"He would take small children and beat their heads against a brick wall, killing them," Gorman said. "He would throw children and elderly Jews onto bonfires. He would force Jews to strip naked, to dig their own graves, and then they would be shot and buried in them."

Schwammberger escaped prosecution after the war by fleeing to Argentina, only to be caught in 1982 and convicted of crimes against humanity. Schwammberger, now an octogenarian, lives in a German prison.

World cultures to be celebrated

Shonda Honigford
The BG News

This Saturday, University students will have the opportunity to go around the world in 2 hours, 38 minutes and 25 seconds.

The International Festival, an evening of food, entertainment and culture will be taking place at St. Thomas More University Parish from 7-9 p.m.

The International Festival is sponsored by the World Student Association. The WSA's mission is to allow international students and American students to communicate and to understand each other's culture's.

"It's part of a process of realizing that there's difference in the world and that can be a beautiful thing," said Mike Fisch, graduate assistant at the Center for International Programs.

The WSA wants to encourage interest in things like other cultures and traveling abroad, Fisch said. Becoming excited by the differences in food, dress and music can help people to come to appreciate the things they have in common. The International Festival is just a start, he said.

"The International Festival allows Americans and international students to learn about other countries, but not just the countries as some disembodied idea," Fisch said.

The festival will include all types of culture from all over the world. Booths will display such items as artifacts, clothing, art, photographs, music and posters. Participants will share their culture as well as answer questions.

Other attractions of the festival will include an international fashion show, a student from Ghana telling a story and food from around the world. The American food will be Velveeta Macaroni and Cheese.

"We wanted a quintessential American food and decided it should be something that came out of a foil packet," Fisch said.

The festival will also include entertainment from around the world. Indian dancing, Ukrainian singing and a taichi demonstration are some of the attractions. There will also be a Chinese woman playing the French horn and a Romanian folk song being played on the violin.

"The International Festival is the start of a reflection. We look at other people who dress differently, dance differently, eat different foods and we realize our American ways aren't the only ones," Fisch said.

The International Festival is not the only cultural activity students can become involved in. Every Tuesday afternoon, the WSA sponsors the Cup of Culture as a way for international and American students to interact.

During the Cup of Culture, students can tell their personal stories, Fisch said. Listening to everyday people's stories about their passions, dreams, injustices

E.A.R. to the Ground ...

Art Modell, what can you say about him that has not already been said? It's already been agreed that he's an immature egotist who has stabbed his loyal fans in the back. It's also been agreed that he's a supremely stupid businessman who lost $21 million in the last two years because of his own incompetence. A consensus has also been reached that he is the supreme evil being on this Earth. So apparently there's nothing to say that hasn't already been said.

Continuing on the football front, there's actually been some speculation that the Cincinnati Bengals might move to Cleveland. Personally, we hope it's not true. Cincinnati fans would be peeved that their team was stolen away and Cleveland would get a team that they've been conditioned to despise for decades.

It appears the administration has been moving fairly quickly on tightening campus safety. While we wish it would have heard our cries two years ago, we commend it on its current actions. The steps the administration are just the beginning of what we hope will be continued sincere and constant concern for students' safety.

Some of you freshmen out there might be wondering how cold it can get around here. Well, let's put it this way, it's going to get a lot colder and it'll keep getting colder until one night at 2 a.m., when the fire alarm will go off in your residence hall and you'll have to stand outside for about 20 minutes. Those 20 minutes are the coldest it will get around here.

This year's been a tough time for Falcon football fans. For the previous three years we've been bragging that we're one of the best teams in the MAC. After last week's game, we got to brag that we would not be the worst team in the MAC. You have to look at the bright side, though, we don't have to worry about another team stealing away Gary Blackney during the off-season.

Do we have a lot of suicidal students at this school? We ask this because there certainly seems to be a lot of students who think nothing of walking right out into the street when there are cars coming. Hang around any street near campus and you'll soon see cars screeching to a halt. Meanwhile the people walking across the street don't even look at them. Remember people, in a battle between a car and a pedestrian, the car usually wins.

This column sucks slaw

Ladies and gentlemen, I've got the block.

Every week I sit down around 8 p.m. Thursday evening and attempt to hash out another 27 inches worth of words. This week it just ain't gonna happen.

As I sat down at my computer, my mind had less ideas than Thurston Avenue has pavement.

Be that as it may, my money's still on my finishing this column before they lay the sidewalks on Thurston.

Anyway, I really just could not think of a single thing I wanted to say in this week's offering. Don't get me wrong, there's several weeks where this thing doesn't come within a bomb's throw of making a point. What really worries me is that I don't know if I can stretch this week's worth of nothing to fit my allotted space.

I did everything except write this stupid thing. I watched the entire "Buns of Steel" video -- without leaving the comforts of my waterbed. I think they call that the "Wrists of Steel" exercise.

I pushed back my cuticles. I used the word cuticles in a sentence.

And in a moment of absolute desperation, I even called my Aunt to find out what we're eating for Thanksgiving dinner.

"Hi, Aunt Janet, how are you doing?" I asked.

"Who is this?" my aunt lovingly replied.

"It's your nephew, Joe," I said. "Just wanted to know what Thanksgiving dinner was going to be this year."

"Are you married yet?" she queried.

"Uh, no."

"You know your Great Aunt is going to die soon," she cheerily replied.

"Real interesting, about that dinner..." I tried.

"They say she's got a bad case of the gout," she said. "It's rotting her toes off."

"Um, Aunt Janet, I really have to go now, I have this column to start."

Nothing like a little family chatter to light the literary fire.

So I set off for the birthplace of most of my column ideas -- the restroom in West Hall, second floor, second stall on the left. Alas, today the porcelain held no magic. In fact the only thing I gleaned from the "session" was a column on alternate punishment for criminals.

"First offense, we'll lock you in a room with a mime," I began. "Next time we'll put you in a room with a mime whose gig is interpretive dance of Shaggy's rap-reggae recording of 'Mr. Boombastic.'"

This might not be half-bad.

"And finally, we'll make you Amish," I finished with a flurry, confident that I was on track to reforming the American prison system.

Then I hit a snag. The brain stopped thinking, my fingers stopped typing, and my editor started yelling. There was nothing I could do. I had blown my literary load. Unfortunately, I had a two-hour writing refractory period -- which actually beats my other refractory period by several hours.

So I was off again to the restroom. This time I returned with a new phone number and this little gem: "White supremacy should be stopped." Fairly safe topic to write about.

The first paragraph: "Nazi's are bad, real bad." White space, white space. "I don't like them so much." White space, white space. "Because they're not nice."

This one fizzled early.

Back out to the water fountain, and then over Barry's Bagels for a bite to eat and a bolt of inspiration. I was looking at the menu when it hit me like a fundamentalist Jew at a peace rally.

The menu read, "Cole Slaw." Say it out loud with me, "Cole Slaw."

One more time, "Cole Slaw." Sounds kinda silly, don't it? Sure, this might not seem like much to you, but it lit a spark in some far-away portion of my idea-dry brain.

Of course the other part of me knew that if any future employers get ahold of this thing, Todd Bridges (TV's "Willis") would find work before me.

"Cole Slaw. Cole Slaw! Cole Slaw!!!" I forged on, despite my misgivings. "Where do you come from, oh, lovely slaw?"

I'm going to be fired.

I called up fact line and asked the question. The words Cole Slaw comes from the words "Kool" which means cabbage and "sla" which equates to salad. "Get it," my brain exclaimed. "It's a cabbage salad!"

I want to die.

Joe Peiffer is the Friday columnist for The BG News. He promises to start next week's offering earlier. Questions, comments and concerns can be sent to jpeiffer@bgnet.bgsu.edu. He would like to thank Joanne and her pal for listening to my diatribe at the local drinkery.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Cleveland fans faithful to end

One of the fondest memories that I had growing up was playing football in my backyard on every cold and snowy day with my two brothers. We always pretended to be the Cleveland Browns playing in the Super Bowl (yes, we had vivid imaginations). Scott would usually be Bernie Kosar while Joe and I fought over who got to be Webster Slaughter. We would spend hours making diving catches in the end zone, spiking the Nerf football as the fans in the Dawg Pound went crazy.

So naturally when I watched the press conference in Baltimore the other day my heart crumbled. All week long I had dismissed the talk of the Browns leaving Cleveland as nonsense. But as I watched Art Modell wipe away the phony tears with his shiny new $50 million contract, I finally came to grips with the fact that my team was gone.

Along with every true Browns fan, I have spent every season defending the team that I love. We have been through the very worst of times: "the drive," "the fumble," "the blowout," and yet we still held our heads up high. I predicted Cleveland to be Super Bowl champs for the past ten-or-so years and for the past ten-or-so years I found myself saying "Just wait until next year." Even my "I like the Cowboys because Troy Aikman has a nice butt" next door neighbor often comments that "Cleveland's uniforms are so ugly" (while sporting her BGSU sweatshirt of course). "Hey, it ain't a fashion show!" I would always say back to her.

So what's next for us Browns fans? Some have started looking for other teams to root for. These are the same "loyal" Cleveland fans who decided to start liking the Indians this year ("Go Chief Wahoo"). I also can't see myself rooting for the Baltimore Ravens; sure it'll be the same players but any true Browns fan will tell you that it just doesn't feel right. So for all of you Cincinnati, Detroit and Pittsburgh fans and for all of you from Cleveland who claim to hate the Browns (although I could've sworn there was a law against it), please cut us Browns fans some slack. After all, we didn't just lose a game or another AFC Championship, we lost our team. But I am confident that just as the Raiders returned to Oakland, the Browns, too, will someday come back to Cleveland. Until then I will continue to wear my Cleveland Browns gear with pride just as I did when I was Webster Slaughter catching passes from Bernie in my back yard.

Homecoming coverage poor

I am very upset by the letter to the editor from Marc Ross concerning Steve Snyder's complaints about the poor coverage of Homecoming in The News this semester, and Marc Ross' letter is a prime example of what is wrong with The News.

I would applaud The News for looking into the selection process. It may seem suspicious that a student organization is running the process. I would applaud them, but The News simply did not look into the problem. Sources were misquoted, facts were twisted, and the basis of the story was not properly researched. The rest of the coverage was a total joke. King candidates were not profiled, and the capsules appeared after the voting process was over. Nice dedication to the students.

The letter notes that The News "does not and should not follow the old standards of news." What are these "old standards," I wonder. The News did not concern itself with the whole truth or properly representing the ideas of people involved. Is this the "new standards?" I want to make this point painfully clear: it is okay to criticize only if one is doing it fairly and with regard to the truth.

UAO was not the only group very unsatisfied with The News' lack of thoughtful coverage. Every king and queen candidate to whom I have spoken is unsatisfied with The News. I am not necessarily trying to defend the process now (I do think it is very fair). My complaint lies with the lack of responsibility shown by The News in obtaining the selection process story, and the letter supporting this journalistic buffoonery.

The only thing "unethical and biased" in this process has been The News and Marc Ross. The News should not be praised for this ridiculous lack of integrity. I urge Mr. Ross and The News to look closely at what you say before you say it.

Strangers show concern exists

Regardless of the day, we can always read the editorial section of a publication and find plenty of criticisms, complaints and the like. So many times, we hear that the students here on campus are rude, inconsiderate and self-serving. But Wednesday night, I saw a side of Bowling Green that I had not seen in such a long time, I had forgotten it existed. Thus I'd like to take a few minutes to give some well deserved praise to those who have earned it.

This past Wednesday night, I was walking to my car from the Moore Musical Arts Center by myself. I had parked it at the Student Health Center because I thought I would do a little studying on campus after choir rehearsal. But when I walked outside and realized how cold it was, that thought froze up and died. I was going home.

At any rate, between the time I left MMAC and the time I reached my car (about 90 seconds total), I was accosted three times -- by women who wanted to know if I needed a ride. Granted, I knew four of the women in two of the cars, but one of the sisters was a complete stranger. I cannot remember even seeing her around campus.

And it isn't just the fact they thought to stop. As they were slowing down, they were already unlocking their doors and clearing the seats so that I could just jump in.

Maybe it had something to do with the recent attacks that have occurred on and off-campus. Whatever the reason, it felt good to know that there were women who were willing to inconvenience themselves because they were unwilling to have one of their own walking in the cold, at night, by herself.

My prayer is that God remembers the actions of these sisters and blesses them.

Thanks, ladies.

Campus

Roads closed

Two shuttle stops will be temporarily unavailable. MacDonald/Ridge Street and Merry/North College Drive will both be unavailable from Nov. 13 to Nov. 15. People using MacDonald/Ridge Street should use the University Union stop.

Movies this weekend

Three movies will be showing this weekend on campus.
On Friday and Saturday night, the 1995 movie "Crimson Tide" will be shown in 111 Olscamp Hall. The film, which stars Denzel Washington and Gene Hackman, involves a mutiny on a submarine against the possible threat of a nuclear attack.
It will be showing at 7 p.m., 9:30 p.m. and midnight both nights.
Friday night at 7:30 p.m., The Gish Film Theater will present the 1945 film "Spellbound." The film, which stars Gregory Peck and Ingrid Bergman and was directed by Alfred Hitchcock, involves a man with amnesia attempting to discover who he really is.
Saturday night at 7:30 p.m., The Gish Film Theater will present the 1945 film "Thrill of Romance." The film, which stars Esther Williams and Van Johnson revolves around a swimming romance.
Both films at Gish are free.

"Night Music" this weekend

Two performances of Stephen Sondheim's musical "A Little Night Music" will be presented by the University Opera Theatre tonight (Nov. 10) and tomorrow (Nov. 11).
Curtain time is 8 p.m. both nights in Kobacker Hall of the Moore Musical Arts Center.
The musical is being directed by F. Eugene Dybdahl, director of opera activities at the University.
Tickets for the production are $7, $9 and $11 for reserved seating. A special ticket price of $5 is being offered to University students at the door the evening of the performance.
Tickets can be purchased at the Moore Musical Arts Center box office or reserved by calling 372-8171 or 1-800-589-2224.

Feline creature coming

Dr. Seuss's infamous Cat in the Hat will visit the University bookstore on Saturday Nov. 11.
The special event is being held in conjunction with Children's Literature Month.

In Brief

Darden spotted with Anita Hill

NEW YORK -- So who's it going to be for Christopher Darden? His fellow prosecutor in the Trial of the Century, Marcia Clark? Or the focus of the Senate Hearing of the Century, Anita Hill?
Darden and Clark have insisted they aren't an item. On Thursday, the Daily News cited unidentified sources in Los Angeles as saying Darden is seeing Hill, the Oklahoma law professor who accused Clarence Thomas of sexual harassment.
Hill and Darden were recently photographed together at a Los Angeles hotel. One source told the News that Darden laughed off speculation he was linked to Clark by telling a friend, "Doesn't everybody know? I'm with Anita Hill."
Hill didn't immediately return a call Thursday. Darden agent Norman Brokaw said: "Chris dates a lot of girls. Anita Hill is a friend. I don't know if they're romantically involved."

Jackson calls sale of Beatles catalog "merger"

NEW YORK -- Michael Jackson denied he's strapped for cash and said he didn't "sell" his Beatles music catalog to Sony Corp.
He called the $95 million deal a "merger," not a sale.
"It's just a great move, a corporate, entrepreneurial thing to do," Jackson said in Thursday's USA Today. "It's smart business. It's about growth. Everything in life to me is about growth."
The deal had led to reports that Jackson was spending too much on lawsuits and luxuries, and needed the cash.
Jackson lawyer John Branca said Jackson originally wanted to buy the rights to father-in-law Elvis Presley's "Heartbreak Hotel," but Sony's U.S. chief, Michael Schulhof, reportedly told him the rights weren't for sale, inquiring instead about the 250 Beatles songs Jackson owns.
The merged catalog will be the third biggest in music publishing.

"Jayhawks" call it quits

ST. PAUL, Minn. -- The Jayhawks, called "the only country-rock band that matters" by the Village Voice, are splitting up.
Band members said Wednesday they are calling it quits because singer-guitarist Mark Olson has decided to pursue other songwriting interests.

"It's so undramatic," bass player Marc Perlman said. "I wish we had a big fight and threw stuff at each other, but when he told us, it was just like, 'Oh, yeah. I understand. I guess you have a point.' Then we hugged each other and went our separate ways."
Guitarist Gary Louris said the split is "a healthy thing, really," because it gives each member an opportunity to try other things.
The band has been together for about 10 years, producing four albums. Its latest is "Tomorrow the Green Grass."

Cartoonist Bill Watterson retiring Calvin and Hobbes

KANSAS CITY, Mo. -- Calvin and Hobbes, the terrible tyke and his sidekick tiger, will be retired from the funny pages on Dec. 31.
In a letter to newspaper editors Thursday, cartoonist Bill Watterson said the decision to end the strip was not a recent or easy decision.
"I believe I've done what I can do within the constraints of daily deadlines and small panels," Watterson, 38, said in the letter. "I am eager to work at a more thoughtful pace, with fewer artistic compromises."
"Calvin and Hobbes" hit the comic pages in 1986 and entertained millions with the antics of a 6-year-old boy with an overactive imagination and a not-so-stuffed tiger.
In the past nine years, the pair launched countless snowball ambushes, journeyed through space, tormented a baby sitter and ran afoul of Calvin's patient parents.
"Calvin and Hobbes" is distributed internationally to nearly 2,400 newspapers. More than 23 million copies of books based on the cartoon are in print. All 13 collections were million-dollar sellers in their first year.

Lee Salem, editorial director at the Universal Press Syndicate in Kansas City, said that after Dec. 31, the company will not provide reruns of the strip to newspapers the way it did when Watterson took a nine-month leave of absence in 1991 and again last year.

and victories is a way for students to get to know the real people of a culture.
"Suddenly people from another place are real individuals with ideas and culture and music that is important to them," Fisch said.
People tend to gravitate toward people who are like them. The Cup of Culture is a way to allow yourself to be around people who are different than themselves, Fisch said. Americans may not be aware of how dominant their culture is because it is everywhere. The Cup of Culture gets people to look at their culture differently.

Gorman said she remembers being too weak to climb down the hayloft ladder on the morning when the Russian army came to liberate the nearby towns.
Later, her mother was wounded in an air raid. Left uncared for by Russian soldiers on a hospital cot, she soon died of infection and problems related to vermin infestation. Erna Gorman and her father dug a grave for her mother with their bare hands.

After the horrors of growing up during the Holocaust and having narrowly escaped death many times, Gorman said she is not out looking for sympathy. Gorman said her greatest hope is that parents will teach their children not to hate.
Gorman's speech was part of a Holocaust Education Week sponsored by Hillel, Jewish Federation of Greater Toledo and University Activities Organization.

Trash not sorted properly

Students hinder recycling efforts by mixing garbage

Darla Warnock
The BG News

The University recycling program has found that many items are not being separated correctly, making them unrecyclable.

According to Recycling Program coordinator Craig Wittig, students need to sort and recycle correctly in order for the program to work properly.

"We rely on the consumer to sort the material," Wittig said. "If you don't want to recycle, throw it out because if the barrel is mixed up we have to throw it out anyway."

Students do have the option to not recycle, but if they choose that option, Wittig says they should use the Dumpsters rather than the recycling bins for their trash. Currently, the problem with the contamination is that students are not sorting correctly.

"For some reason this year people won't separate the material," Wittig said. "They need to see the importance in separating."

Many recyclables that are improperly distributed among the bins are lost, Wittig said.

"I think that people want to recycle," Wittig said. "They just don't know how."

Students, for the most part, agree that recycling is beneficial and needs to be taken seriously, he said.

"I feel that it is very important and I want to have a good Earth to live on," said Tara Schmoekel, sophomore biology major. "All you have to do is throw your stuff in a bin and take it down to be recycled."

As a result of the improper recycling, the Recycling Program has posted informative signs to educate the campus about the correct methods of recycling.

"The one thing is that it is possible that we haven't done enough education," Wittig said. "Basically, we are taking the educational approach to solving the problem."

Wittig said students should recycle responsibly, separating materials into the different bins and eliminating any trash. The items should be clean and bottles should be completely empty of any liquids.

Schmoekel said she believes some of the problems with trash can be solved by providing trash cans in recycling areas to cut down on the trash thrown in recycling bins.

Hot tub event earns cash for Men's Chorus

Genell Pavellich
The BG News

Students walking through the Union Oval last week may have been surprised to see men in a hot tub in the wintery weather. But those men said it was worth it - they raised $8,500.

It was the third annual Men's Chorus Hot Tub-a-Thon, and Sean Moorman, president of Men's Chorus, said the group will use the money to defray costs of its spring trip to New York and Washington D.C.

Moorman said the event got a large response from the students.

"There were a lot of students who were generous in helping," he said. "The response was the largest so far in the three years we have done the Hot Tub-a-Thon."

Steve Kovach, senior member of the Men's Chorus, agreed that the event had a great response.

"There were a lot of people

University police received a report of a disturbance in the Bromfield parking lot on Nov. 3. According to the police report, two non-students, one male and one female, were having an argument. The woman told police they were arguing because she "is leaving for college and he doesn't like what he's seen of college life." The cacophonous couple was advised that if they caused any further disturbance they would be arrested.

Early on the morning of Nov.

3, a campus police officer noticed several people entering the tunnel opening in Lot K. The officer approached the portal pirates and told them to "stop."

On Nov. 6, a custodial worker in Offenhauer East advised campus police that someone had removed her lunch from a refrigerator in the break room. According to the police report, the contents of the missing meal included "two Lunchables and pudding cups." The alleged Lunchable launderer is still at large.

State offices not restricted to Columbus

John Chalfant
The Associated Press

COLUMBUS — Some state departments and their recession-proof jobs now in the capital could move to other parts of Ohio under a bill that cleared the Senate with ease Thursday.

Sen. Stephen Yarbrough, R-Toledo, won approval on a 29-1 vote of a House bill to repeal a law that requires central offices of each Cabinet agency located in Columbus. The repeal would not take effect for two years.

The legislation also would create a legislative committee to conduct an 18-month study of issues surrounding possible relocation of state agency operations throughout the state.

"I certainly hope we'll make a serious effort to determine whether or not the state agencies and bureaus can be located in other parts of the state," Yarbrough said.

The bill now goes back to the House for consideration of Senate changes.

In other action Thursday, the Senate:

■ Voted 18-11 for a bill to impose extra hurdles for legislators and the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency to clear before they impose new environmental laws, regulations or policies. The bill would require legislators to document the need for such laws, and require the EPA to consult with local government, business and environmental groups before adopting new rules.

Opponents said the bill was an abdication of legislative functions to business and other interests. The bill went back to the House because of Senate changes.

■ Approved on a 28-2 vote a bill to require nursing homes and similar adult-care operations to request criminal background checks of employees who provide direct care to residents. Sponsoring Sen. Karen Gillmor, R-Old Fort, said the bill would bar employment of people with records of sexual assault, drug trafficking, robbery and certain other crimes. The bill goes to the House.

Yarbrough said modern communications had eliminated one of the original reasons to concentrate state government offices in Columbus.

"I don't think there's an economic predicate to have centralization that there was in the past. We'll have an honest look at whether or not government agencies can be fairly distributed throughout the state," he said.

"Not just to Toledo, but Port Clinton, Bowling Green, Youngstown, Akron and the like."

Peace talks make progress

Agreement to return refugees, reunite city to be signed

Slobodan Lekic
The Associated Press

DAYTON — In the most significant breakthrough in Bosnia peace talks so far, Muslims and Croats agreed Thursday to revive a moribund federation set up at U.S. urging in 1993 to end fighting between them.

Although negotiators were not thought to be nearing a comprehensive peace agreement, Secretary of State Warren Christopher was flying to Dayton on Friday to rejoin the talks at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

Sources in both delegations said a ceremony would be held Friday to sign key aspects of the federation accord, including agreements on the return of refugees and the contentious issue of reuniting the southern city of Mostar.

It remained unclear how the parties were reacting to a new set of draft agreements on Bosnia's constitutional makeup compiled by international mediators on the basis of contacts with the warring sides over the past nine days. The proposals were to be considered Thursday.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Nicholas Burns announced that Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic and Serb President Slobodan Milosevic jointly requested the immediate resumption of unrestricted natural gas deliveries to both countries on humanitarian grounds and as a confidence-building measure.

The United States had said previously it would not support a relaxation of economic sanctions.

Pot smoker pleads not guilty

The Associated Press

TOLEDO — A quadriplegic who smokes marijuana to relieve his pain pleaded innocent Thursday to a drug charge as six supporters protested outside the Lucas County Courthouse where he appeared for an arraignment.

Daniel Asbury, 39, of Oregon, pleaded innocent to one count of trafficking in marijuana. His trial was scheduled to begin Jan. 2. If convicted, he could be sentenced to 1 1/2 years in prison.

Asbury's lawyer, Terry Lodge, said he would turn the case into a "referendum on the validity of the medicinal use of marijuana."

Prosecutor Anthony Pizza said he had to prosecute.

"At this point, we're constrained to go forward," he said.

In 1980, Asbury fell from a fence and broke his neck. Although paralyzed from the chest down, he has some feelings in his arms.

walking by who stopped to pledge money," he said.

Moorman said he thought the response was good considering how cold the weather outside was.

"We got even more of a response because of how cold it was," he said. "More students were coming up to us and saying they couldn't believe we were out there."

Moorman said the Hot Tub-a-Thon is a good way to make money because it is a little different than most fundraisers.

"This Hot Tub-a-Thon is a little crazier than normal and it catches the eye of the campus and community," he said.

He also said it is a good way to get the group's name out to students.

"We choose to do this event when it is cold outside, so people will think we are even nuttier," he said. "With the Hot Tub-a-Thon, our name is getting out through campus."

Kovach also said the event is a good fundraiser because it is a novelty.

"The main success of this event is because it is something no one else has done or no one else is doing," he said. "It was a novel idea that is now a tradition."

"the tradition continues..."

Jury to decide on killer's fate

The Associated Press

NORMAN, Okla. — An Ohio man convicted of killing a woman as she fished at Lake Stanley Draper could function well in prison, a clinical psychologist said Thursday.

Dr. Phillip Murphy testified before a Cleveland County District Court jury that must decide whether Lewis Eugene Gilbert should be executed or be sentenced to life in prison or life without parole.

Gilbert was convicted Monday of first-degree murder in the September 1994 shooting of Roxy Ruddell, a marina security guard. Authorities say her death was part of a multi-state crime spree stretching from Ohio to New Mexico.

The state is seeking the death penalty for Gilbert, 24, of Newcomerstown, Ohio. Defense attorneys, trying to keep him off death row, spent Wednesday and part of Thursday calling witnesses who told of Gilbert's impoverished, abusive childhood and a variety of disorders he suffers.

The jury of seven women and five men was expected to get the case later Thursday.

Gilbert and Eric Elliott, 17, of Newcomerstown, were arrested in Santa Fe, N.M., days after Ms. Ruddell's death. Elliott is to be tried in January.

The two also are suspected in the death of Flossie and William Brewer of Kingdom City, Mo., and the disappearance of Ruth Loader of Port Washington, Ohio.

Murphy, who performed tests on Gilbert in October, said Gilbert does "best in a very structured setting."

He said Gilbert suffers from congenital brain defects that are compounded by a life of verbal, physical and possibly sexual abuse.

"He is a person who is traumatized by life, anxious and nervous because of it ... He has a lot of control problems, a lot of anxiety. He is a very ill person," Murphy said.

Murphy said he considered Gilbert a man too depressed to be aggressive, at least at the time he saw him.

Gilbert has been diagnosed as having a borderline personality disorder, attention deficit, dyslexia, post-traumatic stress syndrome and low intellectual ability.

Racial slurs spark lawsuit

Wal-Mart employee claims harassment by manager

The Associated Press

FREMONT, Ohio — A former personnel manager for a Wal-Mart store said the store manager racially harassed her and demoted her because she is black.

Wal-Mart Stores Inc. of Bentonville, Ark.; Lawrence Lynch, manager of Wal-Mart's Fremont store; Dann Moore, Wal-Mart district manager, and Jeff Cox, the company's regional personnel manager, were listed as defendants in a lawsuit filed Wednesday by Henri Diane Martin and her husband, Otis, in Sandusky County Common Pleas Court.

The couple is asking for $12 million in damages.

Mrs. Martin, 39, has been employed at the Wal-Mart store in Fremont since 1989. The lawsuit said she started as a stocker and was promoted to personnel manager in March 1990.

She was personnel manager until Oct. 9, 1995, when she was demoted to stocker. She still works at the store.

The lawsuit said Mrs. Martin had good evaluations for several years, but was demoted because Lynch, who became store manager last year, did not like her because she is black.

It said that once Lynch, who is white, was appointed store manager, Mrs. Martin "began to be subjected to extreme, outrageous and intentional racial slurs and inappropriate racial innuendos which constituted racial harassment and racial discrimination."

"This is the first I've heard about it," Lynch said about the lawsuit. "I really can't comment right now. All questions will have to be answered by our legal department."

Messages left today and Wednesday at Wal-Mart corporate headquarters were not returned.

The lawsuit said Lynch referred to Mrs. Martin as "Aunt Jemima," a fictional black woman whose face adorns pancake and syrup boxes and containers, and "Hattie McDaniels, the black mammy in the movie 'Gone With the Wind.'"

She also said Lynch asked her to adjust the store's payroll to deprive workers of overtime so the store would stay within its budget.

Prison workers paid back

Employees receive larger checks after company shorted them

COLUMBUS — At least 500 state prison employees will receive larger paychecks on Friday because of payroll mistakes made by a company hired to help prepare state pay records.

The mistakes were made on checks issued two weeks ago and cost workers between $127 and $400.

Ohio Department of Administrative Services officials estimated last week that more than 100 employees were shorted in a mixup caused by Data Entry Processing Services of Worthington. The company has a $140,000 contract to enter codes on payroll sheets and transmit the information electronically to the state.

But officials of the Ohio Civil Service Employees Association found that 305 employees at the North Central Correctional Institution in Marion, 243 employees at the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility in Lucasville and 90 workers at the Montgomery Education and Pre-Release Center in Dayton were shorted in their paychecks.

"A majority of the people here are younger, like me, and are living paycheck to paycheck," said James Minzelli, president of the union's chapter at the Lucasville prison. "This took a pretty good dent out of it."

State officials and Phil Childress, president of Data Entry Processing, promised the errors would be corrected. They said the number of mistakes was not high considering the state writes 65,000 payroll checks every two weeks.

The company's contract is expected to save the state $150,000 a year as part of a move to streamline Administrative Services, the business arm of state government.

Woman's death defended

Questions surround Kevorkian's latest mercy kill

Sandra A. Svoboda
The Associated Press

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. -- The latest person to die in Jack Kevorkian's presence was indeed terminally ill, an outside expert said Thursday as questions arose over whether the man known as Doctor Death had moved too fast this time.

While Kevorkian's lawyer said the breast cancer that spread through Patricia Cashman's body was crumbling her bones, a preliminary autopsy found no visible traces of the disease.

At the request of The Associated Press, Dr. Jeffrey Forman, vice chairman of radiology at Wayne State University School of Medicine, reviewed some of Cashman's medical records, which were provided by Kevorkian's lawyer.

Cashman did have bone cancer, but it wouldn't necessarily have been detected during a routine autopsy, Forman said.

Cashman, 58, of San Marcos, Calif., was found Wednesday in a car near the morgue. Kevorkian's lawyer, Geoffrey Fieger, said Cashman had undergone a mastectomy three years ago and suffered "excruciating" pain from the disease spreading through her body.

She had been treated at Scripps Memorial Hospital in Encinitas, Calif., but doctors could not comment until her next of kin released the medical records, spokeswoman Sue Pondrom said.

The autopsy found that Cashman died of carbon monoxide poisoning. It was ruled a homicide. Prosecutors and investigators said they would wait for a final report before deciding whether to charge Kevorkian.

Kevorkian, a retired pathologist, has acknowledged attending 26 suicides since 1990, most involving carbon monoxide.

Kevorkian already faces assisted-suicide charges in four deaths in Oakland County. He could get five years in prison in each case if convicted. Prosecutors failed last month to have him placed under house arrest while he awaits trial.

Kevorkian would not be available for comment, his lawyer said.

Cashman was in extreme pain, said her sister, Sherry McDonald, who was with her when she died.

"She could barely walk. She couldn't get up and out of bed by herself," McDonald said. "I hated to have her die, but I felt it was the right thing for her to do."

Cashman's neighbor, Barbara Allan, said she saw the woman last week at their mobile-home park and she seemed to be doing well.

"She was standing at the door," said Allan, who knew Cashman was being treated for cancer. "She looked good. She was a heavy-set woman, but she looked fine and seemed to be in a good mood."

Oakland County Medical Examiner L.J. Dragovic, whose employee found that "There was no cancer," accused Fieger of manipulating the media.

"We have to have demonstrable fact before we claim something," he said.

But Fieger continued to attack the findings of Dr. Kanu Virani, the county's deputy chief medical examiner, who performed an autopsy Wednesday.

Judge upholds Scouts' gay ban

Donna De La Cruz
The Associated Press

TRENTON, N.J. -- A state judge, citing the biblical story of Sodom and Gomorrah as evidence that homosexuality is immoral, upheld the Boy Scouts' ban on gays.

Superior Court Judge Patrick J. McGann found that the Monmouth Council of the Boy Scouts did not violate state discrimination laws when it expelled James Dale as an assistant scoutmaster in 1990 after learning he is gay.

The judge said the Boy Scouts is a private organization and has a constitutional right to decide who can belong. The Scouts' gay ban has been challenged several times but always upheld.

"Men who do those criminal and immoral acts cannot be held out as role models," McGann wrote in the Nov. 3 ruling released Wednesday.

Dale's lawyer Evan Wolfson said Thursday it was "shocking to read such harsh anti-gay language coming from a judge in writing." Wolfson said he may appeal.

McGann did not immediately return a call for comment.

In his legal analysis, McGann cited the Bible:

"Sodomy is derived from the name of the biblical city, Sodom, which, with the nearby city of Gomorrah, was destroyed by fire and brimstone rained down by the Lord."

Cop's coffee cup reveals robber

The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA -- A cop knew something was up when an unfamiliar waitress fumbled behind the counter and handed him the wrong-size coffee cup, half full, during his nightly doughnut shop stop.

"I figured this person doesn't work there," Sgt. Michael Regan of suburban Cheltenham Township said Wednesday.

Lingering in the parking lot, he watched her pound on the cash register keyboard at the Dunkin' Donuts, then walk into a back room and return with two employees he recognized.

"I saw her make one of them open the register, and when he did that she scooped up the money," Regan said.

That's when he called for backup and drove toward the store. The woman spotted his cruiser and climbed through the takeout window. He jumped out and grabbed her, but she pushed free and ran.

Another officer and his dog managed to track her down.

Ella Harold, 26, was charged with robbery on Wednesday, accused of taking about $100 from the store.

Astronauts restricted by size

NASA cosmonauts denied access to Russian space station

Marcia Dunn
The Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. -- Too tall, too small, too heavy, too cheery -- one by one, America's astronauts are dropping out of the international space scene.

They may have the right stuff, but they're the wrong size.

In the last month, two NASA astronauts have been disqualified from training for long stays aboard the Russian space station Mir. One was 2 inches too tall, the other 1 1/2 inches too short.

It gets worse. After three years of joint space cooperation, NASA has just learned that only about half of its 88 astronauts can meet rigid Russian size requirements for Soyuz spacecraft, the cramped ships that ferry cosmonauts aloft and also serve as Mir's emergency escape craft.

Astronauts must be 5 feet 4 1/2 inches to 6 feet tall, with seated height no more than 37 inches; weigh no more than 187 pounds; and, for Soyuz spacesuits, have chests no smaller than 38 inches and no larger than 44 inches.

Of the currently qualified astronauts, up to two-thirds are training specifically for space shuttle flights and are thus out of the running for Mir duty. Not all of the remaining 15 or so are eager to move to Russia for the required year of training then spend a minimum four months aboard the aging space station.

"Now you take who fits, and who's available, and who wants to go that's available, and who can speak Russian and do all this, and the list is very short," says David Leestma, director of NASA's flight crew operations.

"It's clearly a challenge," he says.

The Soyuz capsules pose a potentially more troublesome problem for the future. When the planned international space station starts taking in permanent residents, perhaps in just 2 1/2 years, the capsules will not only see duty as "lifeboats" but will also carry all crews up and back in the first few years of its existence.

Translation: NASA may not have enough Russian-speaking, ideally sized astronauts for its desired international space station slots over the next five years.

The Russians have been reluctant, at least so far, to modify the Soyuz to safely accommodate a greater variety of American shapes.

"People are just now beginning to understand the magnitude of the problem," Leestma says.

Astronaut Norman Thagard, the first American on Mir, was the perfect size -- 5 foot 9 and 156 pounds, at least when he arrived aboard a Soyuz in March. He lost 17 1/2 pounds in the next four months.

The four other NASA astronauts slated to serve aboard Mir are to arrive and depart via space shuttle Atlantis, but would have to use the attached Soyuz for an emergency getaway.

This Saturday, a short visit to Mir is in the offing, with Atlantis scheduled for launch and, three days later, a docking with the Russian station.

Because of what NASA claims was miscommunication, NASA only last month got the skinny on the very specific Soyuz size criteria. Their origins are obvious enough: Cosmonauts sit curled in an almost fetal position in the bell-shaped Soyuz capsules, with knees bent toward their chests. The capsules parachute to Earth, typically in Kazakhstan, and the jarring impact can injure an oversized or undersized astronaut's back dent Housing and Residence Programs, said RAs are fully able to deal with someone who has been victimized sexually.

"RAs go through a training period, which is usually about 3 to 4 hours, about how to deal with situations such as this," Nemitz said. "RAs are taught not to make any judgements about the victim. They are there to provide support and let [the victim] know what their options are."

Options suggested by the RA usually include going to the police, going to the hospital and calling the victim's parents. No action will be taken by the RA, however, unless the victim agrees to it.

According to Nemitz, the most important thing an RA can do when he or she learns about the situation is establish a comfort level for the victims.

"Many victims are distraught and upset," Nemitz said. "It is the responsibility of the RA to let the student [who has been victimized] know that they can depend [on the RA]."

Nemitz said the RA does eventually have to inform the hall director about the assault, but they do not have to inform anyone else. The hall director will not inform anyone else without the victim's consent.

Barbara Waddell, public information officer for Public Safety, said any reports or complaints involving sexual assaults are thoroughly investigated.

"If someone files a complaint that they have been raped, we investigate the matter and talk to all the people involved," Waddell said. "We then turn it over to the prosecuting attorney, who makes the decision as to whether or not to prosecute."

According to Waddell, an issue such as sexual assault is bigger than any single department on campus.

"We can't offer counseling or help someone get through this in the long run," Waddell said. "We have to make sure we're effective in doing what we can do to help combat this. But we also have to work well with all the other departments that help deal with this situation."

Another organization with major responsibilities in dealing with victims of sexual assault is Health Services.

Rabin's death investigated

Prime minister's slaying may be part of a conspiracy

Hillary Appelman
The Associated Press

JERUSALEM -- Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's slaying was part of a carefully planned right-wing conspiracy, Israel's police minister said Thursday. Police unearthed a cache of guns and explosives at the home of the confessed killer.

Two more religious Jewish extremists were hauled into court handcuffed and shackled, and police said they planned to charge one of them with murder. Only one suspect has been accused of murder so far -- confessed gunman Yigal Amir.

"We believe there was a conspiracy by a group of people who had the infrastructure and prepared their aims quite cautiously," Police Minister Moshe Shahal said.

An aide said Shahal believes the conspirators planned to kill other public figures as well.

At least five suspects, including Amir, are being held in connection with Rabin's assassination Saturday night. Two, Dror Adani, 26, and Ohad Skornick, 23, were brought before a Tel Aviv magistrate Thursday.

Mourners gather around the grave of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin at Jerusalem's Mount Herzl Cemetery Thursday.

Police told Judge Haya Hefetz they plan to charge Adani, a resident of the West Bank settlement of Beit Hagai, with murder and conspiracy.

Adani, a slight, bearded man with a skullcap, is "part of a group that planned and carried out the murder of the prime minister," said police investigator Nissim Daoudi. He said the group hoarded weapons and tried to kill Rabin on several occasions.

Skornick, a close friend and classmate of Amir, is accused of conspiracy.

Daoudi said police searched Amir's home and found "weapons that befits a terror organization, including timers for bombs and grenades."

The weapons TNT and other explosives, time fuses and a silencer were discovered in boxes buried in the yard of the home where Amir's mother, Geula, runs a preschool, Israel Radio said. Detectives waited for hours for the children to leave before they began digging.

Amir, a 25-year-old law student, insists he acted alone.

None of the suspects has been formally charged, and the government has not yet presented any proof to back up its conspiracy allegations.

Skornick's family accused the government of making arrests simply to ease public pressure.

"They're just looking for a scapegoat," said his mother, Esther. "He is not a member of any organization. He knew what we all knew people said Rabin should be murdered. Nobody believed it."

Police are investigating links between the suspects and groups that follow the teachings of the late Meir Kahane, a virulently anti-Arab rabbi. Avishai Raviv, leader of the militant pro-Kahane group Eyal, was arrested earlier in the week.

Eyal, believed to have fewer than 20 members, has been linked to vandalism of Palestinians' cars and assaults on Arabs and human rights activists, but never before to murder.

On Thursday, vandals splashed white paint on Kahane's grave in Jerusalem.

South Africa McDonald's opens doors

John Daniszewski
The Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa -- McDonald's says it will sell its first burger and fries in South Africa on Saturday despite a headline-making legal battle with a local copycat.

Corporate executives and the proud owners of the first McDonald's franchise south of the Sahara -- South Africans S'phiwe and Busi Skhosana -- showed off the gleaming new restaurant Thursday with indoor and outdoor seating for 250 people.

Located in a heavily traveled suburban shopping area, it has towering golden arches, South Africa's first drive-through windows, and a colorful McPlayland with a twisty slide for the under-11 set.

Local businessman George Sombonos, owner of a fried-chicken chain, had registered for himself the McDonald's trademark in South Africa, plus the trademarks for the Big Mac, Chicken McNuggets, Egg McMuffin and other McDonald's products.

On Wednesday, he started a copycat "MacDonald's" in downtown Johannesburg. It was attracting long lines of customers Thursday.

A South African judge on Oct. 6 upheld Sombonos's claim to the trademarks. McDonald's appealed and a ruling is expected next year.

Jim Skinner, executive vice president of McDonald's International, did not want to talk about the trademark battle Thursday. "We'd be happier if it hadn't happened," he said.

South Africa has restaurants modeled on American fast-food franchises. But it has nothing that compares to McDonald's in speed of service.

The concept of a "drive-through" restaurant was so novel newspapers had to explain it.

"No matter what short-term challenges we may face McDonald's is in South Africa to stay," said Carter Drew, managing director of the South African operation. "We are committed to the country of South Africa."

South Africa is the 86th country to host McDonald's since the Oakbrook, Ill.-based company started expanding.

Confidence in Yeltsin declines

Russian president's heart problems hurting public opinion, polls show

John Iams
The Associated Press

MOSCOW -- Public confidence in Boris Yeltsin's ability to govern Russia appears to be slipping as the president remains in a hospital with heart trouble, a poll showed Thursday.

Only 11.4 percent of those questioned by the Mnenie polling organization believed Yeltsin's health permitted him to carry out the responsibilities of president.

Another 39.9 percent said Yeltsin could not do his job because of his health.

A similar poll conducted a year ago found that 35.3 percent believed Yeltsin could do his job even though his health was rocky, while 28.7 percent did not think he could.

The poll was based on telephone interviews with 1,051 Moscow residents from Nov. 1-3. The margin of error was 3 percent.

Yeltsin entered the hospital two weeks ago for the second time in less than four months for treatment of a serious heart ailment.

On Thursday, he met in his hospital room with Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev to discuss the war in Bosnia, European security and other issues.

At the end of the meeting, Yeltsin instructed Kozyrev "to defend Russian interests in Europe, and in the Bosnian settlement in particular," the Interfax news agency reported.

The agency said Yeltsin expressed confidence in Kozyrev, who has previously come under presidential criticism for allowing Russian foreign policy to drift.

"We assured Bill Clinton that Boris Nikolayevich does not need any special medical attention," Medvedev told APTV. "All the necessary equipment and specialists can be found in Russia."

NCAA or bust

This weekend, Bowling Green's top two fall sports will battle for NCAA Tournament berths.

Saturday, the men's and women's cross country teams compete in the NCAA Districts in West Lafayette, Ind. The cross country teams won both MAC titles this year, and all with solid performances they could garner some NCAA berths.

Sunday, the 1995 MAC Champion Falcon soccer team hosts Davidson at Mickey Cochrane Field, and the winner earns an automatic berth in the NCAA tournament.

It will be an exciting weekend for BG athletics, even with the football team completing its disappointing season at Kent on Saturday.

The cross country program has consistently been one of Bowling Green's strongest programs. Coaches Sid Sink and Steve Price continue to head solid squads worthy of some recognition.

The soccer program, meanwhile, will cap a historic season Sunday when it hosts Davidson at beautiful Cochrane Field. The Falcons christened permanent bleachers and a new press box this year, completing one of the best soccer complexes in the Midwest.

They defeated Akron 2-0 in the MAC Championship game last week, after the Zips had defeated them earlier in the season. And now the Falcons stand a win away from their second NCAA appearance in four years.

The Falcons deserve a tip of the cap -- and a big crowd for the game on Sunday.

Cochrane Field is one of the best places to watch soccer in the country, and despite the cover charge ($3 for BG students with a valid ID), the Falcons are well worth it. A victory insures a tournament spot, and possibly a chance at hosting a tournament game next week.

So come on out and support the soccer team -- they deserve a big crowd.

As for the cross country team, if anybody happens to be passing through West Lafayette, Ind., tomorrow, stop in and offer the runners some support.

The men's and women's basketball teams were predicted to finish seventh and sixth, respectively, in the MAC this year at MAC Media Day this week.

While the returning numbers aren't promising -- only four men's players have collegiate experience, while the women return only two starters -- the newcomers are talented and both Falcon teams have the potential to raise some eyebrows.

Both teams looked pretty good in their first two scrimmages -- the women lost by four to a Russian team while the men punted a Croatian club team this week. They each host one more scrimmage, the women Saturday night and the men next Thursday.

Don't be surprised if these Falcons show that youth isn't so bad, after all.

Soccer one step away

Family concept keys BG

Chris Kapcar
The BG News

Bowling Green's first Mid-American Conference championship can be attributed to a couple of things.

The play of goalkeeper Scott Vallow (42 goals-against average, good for second in the nation), Steve Klein and Joe Burch (ranked seventh and ninth in points in the region, respectively), and the overall Falcon record at home the last ten seasons (.772 the last ten years, 7-1-0 this season) are all factors that figured in the championship.

According to head coach Mel Mahler, though, the main reason this year's team is so good is one word -- family.

"We have 23 guys that all get along, that are all on the same page," Mahler said. They're like brothers -- they have their differences once in awhile, but all are good guys, good students, good people. If someone would describe BGSU's soccer team, I would want it to be with those words."

The idea of family is further exemplified by the presence of four players on this year's squad from the same high school.

Brothers Dave (a junior) and Dan (a sophomore) Kindl and sophomores Jon Giganti and Jason Began, all integral players on this year's team, all

Bowling Green mid-fielder

Steve Klein has played in 54 matches at BG and many more while in high school at Nashville, Tenn. But this Sunday's match against Davidson is the most important he has ever played in, he said.

On the line Sunday, in a match beginning at 12:30 p.m., at Mickey Cochrane Field is a automatic berth in the NCAA Tournament. The winner of Sunday's game will receive an automatic bid to be one of the 32 teams in the tournament field.

"It's probably the biggest game of my life to date right now," Klein said. "Making the NCAA Tournament has been one of my goals since I was in high school. It definitely means an awful lot to myself."

Head coach Mel Mahler said the game represents an opportunity for the Falcons to put the program on the national scene.

"It's really important game for any program at this level," Mahler said. "Now this gives us an opportunity to carry the Bowling Green flag nationally. We get past this stage and into the tournament we're at not just representing Bowling Green but the community and the rest of the MAC."

In the way stands the Davidson Wildcats, who won the Southern Conference championship beating Furman 1-0 Nov. 5. Davidson finished the regular season with a mark of 12-10-1 overall and played three teams from the Atlantic Coast Conference one of the top conferences in the nation.

"Davidson is a very aggressive team," Mahler said. "They're a team that will consistently run at you. They will try to put you under pressure for 90 minutes all over the field."

Falcons enter District tourney

Steve Wildman
The BG News

If cross country had a playoff, this meet would be the deciding game on who goes home and who advances to the final: the NCAA Championship.

The Bowling Green men's and women's cross country teams travel to West Lafayette, Ind. Saturday to participate in the NCAA District 4 qualifier. Purdue will be hosting the meet that will show who are the best teams in the district.

Sink

For Bowling Green's men to qualify for the NCAA Championship they have to finish in the top three. They are going up against some of the best teams in the nation.

The 31st-ranked Falcons have to face the number one team in the nation, Wisconsin, the 10th ranked Michigan squad, and Notre Dame, who is ranked 17th. Head coach Sid Sink knows that an up-hill battle is ahead.

"This meet is important and it is going to be a battle to qualify [for the NCAA]. District four is one the toughest regions in the country," Sink said.

Bowling Green has seen this kind of caliber teams before and have done well.

"We have a chance," Sink said. "We have beat nationally-ranked teams ahead of us before like, Alabama [27] and Wake Forest [23] at the Notre Dame Invitational. We can do it again."

The district meet is a 10-kilometer race and the men will have to run farther than the usual eight kilometers. But BG has run the 10K once this year at Mel Brodt Invitational at home, and it could be an advantage.

"This kind of race favors us because we traditionally start out slow and move up toward the middle of the race. The longer the race, the better chance we have," Sink said.

Bowling Green's women have

Miami tabbed MAC favorite; BG seventh

Scott Brown
The BG News

TOLEDO -- The Miami Redskins were last year's MAC Cinderella team.

This year, there won't be any Cinderella story if the Redskins repeat last year's success after members of the MAC media tabbed them as the men's basketball preseason favorite Thursday at the annual MAC Media Day at the SeaGate Centre.

The Redskins won the regular season MAC title last year and upset nationally-ranked Arizona in the NCAA tournament before succumbing by a point to Virginia in the second round.

"Success allows your players to believe they've arrived," explained Miami coach Herb Sendek. "But I don't even know how good our team is right now."

Miami amassed 40 of a possible

55 first place votes in the polling of MAC media. Their 529 overall points were ahead of 2nd-place Eastern Michigan (467) and 3rd-place Ball State (410).

Bowling Green was selected seventh in the poll, garnering 219 total points.

"I would say that Miami, Eastern, Ball State and Toledo are the four natural choices," said Falcon coach Jim Larranaga. "Ohio is probably fifth, and Western Michigan sixth. I guess that ourselves and Kent are the next two."

Larranaga was quick to point out the league's parity, however, and he thinks that a sleeper team may be lurking.

"To be quite honest, I think that there is a Cinderella team that will materialize somewhere in the race," Larranaga said. "Either to come from out of nowhere to win it, or at least make the race very interesting."

Mid-American Conference 1995-96 Men's Basketball Preview

Pre-season Poll Ballot

	1st place votes
Miami University	529
Eastern Michigan University	467
Ball State University	410
Ohio University	394
University of Toledo	354
Western Michigan University	286
Bowling Green State University	219
Central Michigan University	152
Kent University	143
Arkon University	71

Following Ball State in third place, the predictions were, in order, Ohio University, Toledo, Western Michigan, BG, Central Michigan, Kent and Akron. The Cardinals were the league's tournament champion last season.

Miami lost two starters from their 23-7 team of a season ago, but two of the returnees were honored as Preseason All-MAC selections.

"We just want to come back, play hard and have a winning season," Davis said.

Eastern Michigan returns four of their top five scorers, including Preseason All-MAC selections Brian Tolbert and Theron Wilson. Ball State will be built around last year's Freshman of the Year, Bonzi Wells.

Ohio returns four starters from a year ago, but the biggest loss was All-American Gary Trent to the Portland Trail Blazers. Toledo was picked fifth despite returning a wealth of talent, including All-MAC performer Craig Thames. WMU returns all five starters from a 14-13 team.

As for the bottom rung of the MAC, Central Michigan, Kent and Akron are all looking to rebuild after disastrous 1994 campaigns.

Football closes season at Kent

Scott Brown
The BG News

"The Year That Wasn't" comes to a conclusion on Saturday.

The Bowling Green football team visits Kent for a 1 p.m. kickoff, closing out a frustrating season. The Falcons carry a 4-6 record overall (2-5 MAC) into the contest, and are hoping to build some momentum heading into next season.

"Hopefully this week we can build on the Ohio game [a 33-7 BG victory last week] and start to build for next year," said BG coach Gary Blackney.

The Falcons hold a commanding 44-13-6 lead in the series with Kent, including wins in 20 of the last 21 meetings. The Golden Flashes have given Bowling Green trouble the past couple of years, however, including a 22-16 win at Kent last year when the Falcons had to score nine points to come from behind in the final quarter.

The game will be the last for 14 Falcon seniors, including quarterback Ryan Henry and offensive lineman Cal Bowers, who will not play due to injuries.

Redshirt freshman quarterback Bob Niemet, coming off his best career performance, will again be the starter for the Falcons. Against Ohio, Niemet completed 17-of-25 passes for 233 yards and one touchdown.

Kent, despite its 1-7-1 record, has some weapons. Last year's MAC Freshman of the Year, Astron Whatley, has 815 rushing yards through nine games. The Golden Flashes are unsure as to their quarterback situation, where both freshman Brad Goebbel and junior Mark O'Brien have seen time this year.

Icers head north for key CCHA games

Christian Pelusi
The BG News

After seeing that the Falcon hockey team faces Ferris State tonight and Lake Superior State Saturday in their first full weekend of Central Collegiate Hockey Association play, the eyes might skip over FSU and focus on the Lakers.

As far as BG is concerned, that view is a dangerous proposition.

"We can't afford to look past [tonight]," said Falcon head coach Buddy Powers. "The competition is too close in this league to look by people, especially on the road. Last year we handled [FSU] pretty well the first night and then they came back Saturday and it was a war and we fell behind."

Said defenseman Chad Ackerman: "We have to take Ferris as a top-notch team. Anyone in this league can beat anyone on any given night and if we look past them, we're gonna get beat."

Ferris State (3-4-0 overall, 1-1-0 in the CCHA) is led by center Derek Crimin (seven goals, five assists) but the Bulldogs are known for their tough, grind-it-out brand of hockey that is aimed to slow down their opponent and elevate the physical play.

"Ferris will spear you, slash you and try to frustrate you," said right wing Dale Crombeen. "They'll do anything it takes to throw you off your game, so the strategy is to be tough."

Powers said the key to beating the Bulldogs is being able to adjust to how the game is being played and how it is being officiated.

"We got to be ready for either kind of game. Whether it's a close checking, clutch-and-grab game or if the refs call the penalties, to be prepared to go on the power play and make things work that way."

"Ferris is a tough place to play in," Ackerman said. "They clutch-and-grab and we just have to use our speed and talent to overpower them."

In contrast, the Lakers from LSSU (6-0-0, 2-0-0) are ranked third in the nation in most polls and play much the same style of game as the Falcons. Their aggressive forechecking forwards, like right wing Sean Tallaire (six goals, six assists), pressure opposing defenses while their defensemen smother on-coming rushes, making it extremely difficult for teams to even get shots on goal.

The shots that reach the net against Lake then have to get through goaltender John Grahame. Grahame is 5-0 with a microscopic 1.07 GAA, facing only an average of 20 shots per game.

With the Lakers tight defensive style, pressure on Grahame is vital.

"We've got to take our shots when we get them," Powers said. "You can't be worried about making the pretty play against those guys because they check so well. If you get an opportunity to put the puck on the net, you've got to put it on the net and go hard for the rebound." Last year, the Falcons traveled up to Sault Ste. Marie late in the season and were crushed 8-2 and 7-2. So BG is not only looking for a win, but also some measure of revenge.

"Last year we went up there and they played a New Jersey Devil-type trap and we couldn't do much," said left wing Jason Clark. "This year we've got to finish our checks and play a 2-1-2 forecheck and buzz down low. Hopefully, we'll create turnovers and get shots on net."

"Saturday night is just going to be a battle of two good hockey clubs going toe-to-toe," Powers said. "They make you earn your ice. You're going to earn your goals against them, there's no gimmies."

"Last year, we went in there and I had thought we had a great week of practice and they just kicked us all over the joint. We've got to go back and regain a little of the respect we may have lost for ourselves up there."

Volleyball team still has fighting chance

Jeremy Yohe
The BG News

Four matches ago, the possibility of the Bowling Green volleyball team making the Mid-American Conference tournament seemed remote.

But after winning their last three matches and receiving a little help from the teams ahead of them, the Falcons could very well find themselves in post-season play for the seventh year in a row.

BG will host Toledo (7-19, 4-11

MAC) in Anderson Arena tonight. With the chances of making the MAC tournament riding on the match along with getting even with the Rockets, it will provide for a heated contest.

In the first meeting of the season played in Toledo, UT upended the Falcons in four sets.

"It is going to be a revenge match because of what happened last match," senior middle-attacker Carlyn Esslinger said. "We've been talking in practice and it is going to be a war."

BG downed Western Michigan

in four sets Tuesday, 15-5, 15-12, 13-15, 15-5 to set up the showdown with Toledo. Standing at 14-12 overall and 8-8 in the MAC, BG is one loss behind Ohio (8-7) and Kent (8-7) in the race for the fourth and last seed for the tournament.

A Falcon victory, coupled with two losses by either Ohio or Kent, would place BG in post-season action.

Kent hosts Miami on Friday and Ohio travels to Akron on Friday before their confrontation with Kent.

The BG attack has been bolstered by the play of Esslinger the last two weeks.

Esslinger was named the MAC Player of the Week for her efforts in the last two matches, where she averaged over eight kills per game. She had 57 in eight games. She also leads the MAC in kills per game with 5.14. The previous week Esslinger was named Co-MAC Player of the Week.

Along with her play, Esslinger feels the team as a whole has picked up the intensity.

"It is good to see that we are peaking at the right time with the tournament coming up," she said.

"Everyone is healthy now. It gets us a little more focused to get into the tournament and with the way we've been playing, to win the tournament."

The Orange and Brown will have to focus their attentions on the Rockets' middle-hitter Jean Ann Harrison. Harrison leads the team with a .313 hitting percentage and kills with 266.

Rugby team gets tourney berth

Brian Gibson
The BG News

Like the legendary phoenix, the Bowling Green rugby team rose up out of the ashes of crushing defeat to claim a rebirth in the national championship playoffs.

Last weekend, the Falcon rug- gers defeated Purdue 34-10 but were crushed by Midwest Uni- versities Cup champion Penn State, 55-0. The Falcons were a- awarded a wild card, however, on the strength of their 28-4 record.

Bowling Green will play Ohio State, who posted a similar re- cord against seven common op- ponents, the first weekend in April. The Buckeyes also got pased by Penn State last week- end by a 45-8 score.

"This season is the result of a lot of hard work by an uncom- monly talented and committed group of players," exclaimed BG coach Roger Mazzarella. "They put their money and time on the line to achieve this result," allud- ing to the club's England trip and 6 a.m. practices.

"The timing of the playoff couldn't be better," stated team vice-captain Tony Mazzarella. "We'll have time to heal our bumps and bruises and finish in- stallling the offensive scheme we picked up in England."

Facing Purdue for the second time this fall, the Falcons had revenge on their minds as they sought to pay back the Boiler- makers for the 5-0 sudden death overtime loss in the champion- ship of the Ball State Invitational. Bowling Green methodically chipped away at Purdue's de- fense, scoring tries off of scrums, lineouts and the usual backfield razzle dazzle.

two conversions and an almost unheard-of drop kick field goal. Tod finished the season with 142 points, despite having missed two matches with injuries.

Fullback Tony Mazzarella con- tinued his assault on the Falcon record books as his match try gave him 20 for the season, tying the record set in 1986 by wing Jeff Weemhoff and in 1993 by wing Grady Slack.

"Together, Paul and Tony have contributed one quarter of the 1,000 points this club has scored this season," said captain Dan Kelley. "There isn't a club in the United States that has a better one-two punch in their back- field."

Center Brad Rohlf's closed out his finest season in a Brown and Orange jersey by taking a Jason King pass and alternately run- ning over and through Boiler- maker defenders on his way to a 75-yard try in the first half of the match.

The Falcon forwards took con- trol of the match in the second half, scoring the last three tries of the match. Prop Brian Gibson set a BG record for his position as he rumbled over the goal line on his sixth try of the season. Flanker Chris Haid fell on a Purdue fumble in the end zone for a try and eight man Jeff McVey, in what has become an almost weekly occurrence, again dragged three helpless defenders 20 yards down the field for another try. Mazzarella's conversion made the final 34-10.

As they prepare for next spring's playoff with Ohio State, the 28-4 Falcons close out one of their most successful seasons ever. Ranked 8th nationally, BG recorded 12 shutouts while con- tinuing to be the only collegiate team to score 1,000 points in a single season.

attended Broadview Heights High School together in Brecks- ville, Ill. After a high school ca- reer that included a record of 54-7 and two state champion- ships, the Kindls, Giganti and Began all have ended up playing for a championship Falcon team.

According to Began, the pres- ence of the elder Kindl and the successful program at BG were the two biggest factors in his col- lege choice.

"We all looked individually for a school to go to, but in the end, we all had BG in common," Began said. "We came up here for a visit and had a good time, and also saw how successful the Fal- cons are. Also, Dave [Kindl] was here, and that was comforting."

The two Kindl brothers and Began actually grew up together on the same street in Brecksville. This will be their 10th year play- ing competitive soccer together, and after Giganti transfered to their high school, the quartet was complete. Dave Kindl feels that the experience they have playing with each other for so many years is not to be underesti- mated.

"I don't want to say its ESP when we're out there on the field, but its close," Dave Kindl said. "I can anticipate where they'll pass the ball or where they might be at a particular moment during a game. It's an advantage for our team."

Mahler feels that a major strength of the Kindls, Began and Giganti is that each plays a different type of game. Together, their different skills mold into a strong unit. "We recruited Dave Kindl as a sweeperback, but he was a converted to a forward," Mahler said. "And that's just a tribute to his versatility. He's one of the harder workers we have on the team and lately he's been coming up huge for our team."

The elder Kindl's four match- winning goals lead the squad. Midfielder Jason Began was the MAC "Newcomer of the Year" as a freshman and was voted All- Conference this year. Mahler sees a major strength of Began in his consistency. "Jay Began is a very mobile midfielder," Mahler said. "He can cover a lot of ground and he has a good change of pace. He is very good at help- ing us keep possession locally and has good vision 5-, 10-, and 15-yards in knocking the ball around. And best of all, he does this day in and day out."

Jon Giganti is known through- out the Falcon soccer team as the "fighter". Both Mahler and Giganti's three high school teammates acknowledge his fiery makeup.

"Jon's the guy who will get in our face if we're not playing or really practicing hard," Kindl added. "And he's not afraid of tackling hard or throwing an el- bow during a game. He really gets us up."

According to Mahler, forward Dan Kindl may be the most com- posed and smooth player on the team. This, coupled with an over- all field awareness, make him a strong component of the MAC champion Falcons. "In his posi- tion, he must rely on anticipa- tion," Mahler said. "Danny has got to both support the offense and still be a major stopper on defense. His distribution skills - knocking the ball 30-, 40-yards may be the best on the team."

Giganti pointed out that the differences on the team have added up to be its strength.

"I think what's great about all of us having different skills and strengths is that we have gelled in to a pretty good unit," Giganti said. "Different personalities and skills have made our team as a whole better."

to finish in the top two spots to qualify automatically for the NCAA Championship. But a third place win may give them a chance because the women's bracket of the NCAA grabs six 'wild-card' teams that don't fin- ish in the top two in their district.

The women's side of the dis- trict is just as tough as the men's.

Bowling Green, who is ranked 26th nationally, is going to be up against Wisconsin, who is ranked eighth in the nation. They also have to face a Michigan team that is ranked 12th and a Marquette team that comes into the meet in 22th place. Head coach Steve Price is not afraid.

"We are not scared of these teams. We have ran great all year and we know that we can run with them," Price said.

Patience is going to be the key for a high placing at Purdue. Bowling Green has had a ten- dency of coming at hard and staying up front, but they plan to run differently at Purdue.

"We got to come out and not kill ourselves in the beginning," Price said. "Our main goal is to have one runner with every Michigan runner

Swim teams take on Eagles

Brad Beebe
The BG News

This Saturday, the Falcons will strive for their first victory of the season when they travel to Ypsilanti, Mich. to battle Eastern Michigan University in their second dual meet of this young season. The men will compete against a team that has won 17 out of the last 18 conference meets while the women will play a team which head coach Randy considers in the middle to upper half of the conference.

Regarding the men's team, Julian said, "It's definitely a program that everyone can focus on to try to beat. They're a strong enough team that can be expected to repeat this year."

This weekend showcases two women teams that match up very well. "We're very comparable to them," breaststroke swimmer Alicia Kelso said. "We're so equal, it's hard to predict."

"They've got some outstanding speed, real good Backstroke, and depth in every event," Julian said. "Their depth is a little bit better than our depth right now."

The men will be swimming against a team that has a lot of depth too. "Because of their depth, they're very versatile," said individual medley and backstroke swimmer J.T. Neuffer. "If we don't race competitively with them, we'll lose."

This Saturday, Cheryl Patteson

will return to the lineup after missing the first meet. "We would have a very little chance this weekend without her," Kelso said. "We're glad to have her back."

For the second straight meet, the men will be without Jon Teichman. "We're missing him because of his depth and ability to swim a good breaststroke, individual medley, and some freestyle events."

SOCCER

Junior Robert Clarke scored 18 goals this season in 23 matches and totaled 38 points to led the Wildcats. Sophomore Phil Julien and senior Nick Troiano tied for second on the team in scoring with 15 points each. Fifth-year senior Alex Deegan won all 12 games for Davidson this year. Deegan had four shutouts and a 1.27 goals against average.

Mahler was concerned with the size of the Wildcat players. The Davidson backfield has five players over six feet tall and Deegan is 5'10.

"Their defense has got some size," Mahler said. "That may offset some of our attacking styles. We like to play the ball high in the box. We're going to have to devise another plan of attack."

Mahler said that BG may have to keep the ball on the ground rather than attempt high balls to get headers in the box.

Mahler faced Davidson while he was the head coach at Pfeiffer College.

PLACEMENT SCHEDULE

Bowling Green State University
Career Services
Campus Recruitment Calendar
For the weeks of:
November 27 through December 8, 1995
Scheduling On-Campus Interviews:
Interview sign-ups for the recruiting period November 27 - Dec. 8 1995 will begin with Advanced Job Hunters Sign-up on Monday, November 13 at 5pm and continue through Tuesday at 4pm. All registered students and alumni may access the sign-up system for General Sign-ups from 5pm on Tuesday through 4pm Wednesday. Pre-Selection Interviews wait until Wednesday, at 5pm to select your reserved interview time. Refer to the instructions for pre-selection sign-up on pages 12 - 13 of the Career Search Manual. All interview schedules remain on-line until two days prior to the organization's visit. A message not available for sign-ups indicates that a schedule is off-line. In this instance, please call the office directly at 372-2356 to schedule an interview appointment.

Accessing the Placement System:
1. Dial 372-9899. (You must be registered with Resume Expert Plus)
(You will hear:) If you wish to schedule an appointment with a visiting employer, press the 1 key. If you would like to hear Placement News, press the 2 key. Press the 3 key if you have been pre-selected by an employer. Press the 4 key to access the Alumni VP Service. Press the 5 key to hear your confirmed appointments. Press the star (*) key to quit.

2. Press 1 to schedule an interview or Press 3 when you have been pre-selected by an employer.
3. Enter your Identification Number. (The number you used on your Resume Expert Plus disk).
4. Enter the seven-digit schedule number for the employer with whom you would like to schedule an interview (this number is located on the Campus Recruiting Calendar, to the left of the position title).

If you have entered a valid number the system will play the message:
You have selected (name of organization), if this is correct press the pound (#) key to continue or the star (*) key to choose another organization.

The system will now verify that you meet the requirements, as specified by the employer. If you meet the requirements, you can proceed. Otherwise, the system will play a message which explains why you are unable to sign-up with the employer. Should you wish to be considered by this employer, add your name to the Waiting List and submit a copy of your Placement Data Sheet.

5. Press the 1 key for a morning interview, press the 2 key for an afternoon interview, or press the 3 key for the next available time. (Press either 1, 2 or 3).

Once you have selected a time, then you may press the pound (#) key to accept the time, or press the star (*) key to reject the time. When you press the pound (#) key, the system will play the message: An interview has been reserved for you at (time). Press the star (*) key to schedule an interview with another organization or the pound key to return to start.

6. Repeat steps 4 and 5 to schedule additional interviews.

7. Bring a copy of your Placement Data Sheet on high quality resume paper within 48 hours to the Sign-up Room adjacent to the Career Services' reception area, 360 Saddle Creek Student Services Building. Place your data sheet on the top shelf of the employer's mailbox. Please take any available recruiting literature which was forwarded by the organization and review the employer's file in the Center for Career Resources prior to your interview. Failure to submit your Placement Data Sheet within 48 hours may result in your removal from the interview schedule without notification. Please remember: if you are unable for any reason to sign-up for an interview, you will be asked whether you wish to add your name to the Waiting List. Students are encouraged to get on Waiting Lists. Should the employer send another recruiter or modify the position requirements (i.e. lower GPA requirements), you will be notified directly for an interview. You must also submit a Placement Data Sheet for every Waiting List.

Consult the Career Services' homepage (<http://www.bgsu.edu/offices/careers/index.html>) or listen to Placement News (press 2) to keep informed of changes or additions to interview schedules, or other Career Services programs.

Cancellation of Interview Appointments: Cancellation of an interview must be reported in person to the Career Services no later than 5pm one week (7 full days) before the interview day. Complete a cancellation card in the Sign-up Room of Career Services. You can not cross your name off an interview schedule. Late cancellations will result in forfeiture of sign-up privileges for the next recruiting period. No Show Policy: No-shows are missed interview appointments. Employers become very upset when students miss their scheduled appointments which harms BGSU's reputation in the market place. The penalty for a no-show is immediate suspension of your sign-up privileges for the next recruiting period. To reinstate your sign-up privileges, you are required to write a letter of apology to the employer for missing the interview, bring this letter along with an addressed, stamped envelope, and meet with a staff member to explain your behavior. Any student who "no-shows" twice will be denied interviewing privileges for the remainder of the academic year.

Notice of Citizenship Requirements: If an employer is willing to interview international students, this will be noted in the position requirements.

Spotlight Presentations: Spotlight presentations offer valuable information about career paths, detailed position responsibilities and organizational philosophy. All students scheduling interviews are strongly encouraged to attend appropriate Spotlights. Please carefully note dates, times and locations of Spotlight presentations, as they may vary. Consult the Campus Recruitment Calendar for dates, times and locations.

Additional Placement Services: There are important services available to you at the Career Services. Please note that not all organizations and companies regularly recruit on college campuses. The list below generally reflects the high demand areas in the world of work. Please do not become discouraged if your career field is not requested. Each day, the staff of Career Services refers registered students directly to employers who have positions in a wide variety of career fields. We also assist you in conducting a job search through the following services: career and placement counseling, VIP professional vacancy hotline, job search workshops, professional development seminars, career fairs and the Falcon Career Connection. The Center for Career Resources contains a wealth of information about careers, employers and current job vacancies in ALL fields.

Cheer up everyone

Maybe it's the dull look of the bare trees or the ice-cold chill of the wind as it funnels its way through the buildings on campus. Maybe it's those sporadic snow flurries or the week-long spurts of cloudy days. Maybe we can chalk it all up to the near-end-of-the-semester blues. But either way, the common consensus around here is that everyone is feeling a little down, really tired, and ready for a vacation.

I'd be lying if I said that I wasn't a part of this trend, but there are some people that have crossed my path within the past few weeks who have really caught my attention.

Normally, I'm not one to preach about happiness. Sometimes, if you're lucky enough to catch me in one of my moments, I probably won't even know what it is. Actually, I don't even like people who are happy all of the time. In fact, they really bug me. But then there are some people on the other end of the spectrum who seem to be miserable all of the time. And they sometimes get to me, too.

So, these few individuals have left me no choice but to climb up on my soap box and start lecturing.

First of all, there's my roommate, Jen (Yes, another piece that involves a few of my oh-so-charismatic roommates). She's been weighed down a lot lately by that fun process of trying to figure out what she wants to be when she grows up. I'll spare you the rest of the details, though, seeing as she'd probably kick me out if I told you the rest. To make a long story short, she feels like her life is at a stand-still. And she feels guilty for feeling confused, frustrated, and ready to give up. Then there's Jill. She is thinking of dropping out of school next semester because the pressure is really starting to get to her. And finally, there's Laura (a classmate), who came to class one day telling the story of how the gloomy weather was starting to get to her so much that she felt like quitting school and just heading west. "I just have to get out of Ohio before I go nuts," she said.

Any of this sound familiar?

Well to all of my friends and all of you who answered yes to that question, for all it's worth, I'm going to offer my words of wisdom: hang in there. It's only human to feel the way you do. But before you make any rash decisions, I hope all of you look at the big scheme of things. Stop and ask yourself if things are really that bad or if the pressures of every day life are making things seem even worse. But more importantly, I hope each of you has the courage and the strength to solve your dilemmas and to make yourself happy. Everybody deserves that.

Even industry barriers can't stop The Rivermen

BAND REVIEW

By Aaron Weisbrod

Although the music-makers that would eventually evolve into The Rivermen started as merely an acoustic duo, the band is now six members strong (not including their road manager who joins in to play the organ and keyboard on occasion), and is a stronger driving force in the Toledo music scene than ever before.

Since the band's formation about three years ago, The Rivermen have been packing swarms of people into their shows, combining fans of everyone from Phish to The Grateful Dead to The Charlie Daniels Band to Nirvana in one place, displaying a feat that truly symbolizes the band's musical talent.

"[We] feel we've got a lot going for us," Jeremy Lindsay, the singer and percussionist of the band explained over a cup of Big Boy coffee. "With six members, we've got a number of different influences and tastes. From the start, we've tried to integrate music forms that other people might not feel are very integratable. We try to throw it all into the mix, from bluegrass to funk."

Jeremy went on to explain how the music industry put barriers between different kinds of music about 30 years ago, but that such barriers don't inhibit or stop The Rivermen from re-exposing their audiences to such a musical blend.

"For us, it's a natural thing," Jeremy said.

With such a variety of musical contributors, it's understandable why the band's sound can be a tunes you might hear more of a gospel harmony."

"We've wasted a lot of brain cells trying to Water Sun."

The band now consists of Jeremy and Jim, as well as John Barile on guitar and vocals, Michelle McGrath on vocals, Duval Overton on bass, Andre Bishop on drums, and Mike Moneystone making occasional appearances on organ and keyboards.

As of late, the band has been touring (as usual), covering Ohio,

Michigan, Indiana and Kentucky in the not too distant past.

The Rivermen also revealed that they are giving heavy consideration to recording a live CD over Christmas break. If they do decide to follow through with their plans, (start bugging them about it now) the show will probably take place in Toledo.

The Rivermen will be playing at Easystreet Cafe on Thursday the 16th, as well as at The Main Event on Saturday the 25th. "Wide Water Sun" is currently available at Madhatter's here in Bowling Green and at Boogie Records in Toledo. If you ask them nicely they'll probably even sign your CD for you, so go pick up "Wide Water Sun" today, and then check them out at Easystreet on the 16th. Trust me, these guys are worth it.

As many fans of The Rivermen are probably aware, the band has undergone a change of line-up since the release of their 10-song CD, "Wide

Catching Frank

Allison and The Odd Sox live at Easy Street Cafe is a great way to spend an evening. Not only is it a chance to hear one of the best area bands rip through an original set of down-home blues and rock and roll, but also a chance to be entertained with the band's quirky sense of humor and storytelling.

Starting the band in 1985 at the age of 25, Allison found himself trying to make things work with a group of high-schoolers in his hometown just outside of Ann Arbor, Mich.

"We played mostly our own stuff with a few obscure covers thrown in," Allison said. "Things just weren't working out, though, and I was spending more time picking the guys up so we could practice than actually practicing."

After starting up the band again, Allison and his new group began playing in and around the Ann Arbor area until meeting up with the Russian band, Gaza, who had come over to play several shows throughout the U.S.

"Their manager, Felix, kept asking us to come back with them to Russia to do a series of shows," Allison said. "We bought our tickets and flew over, only to find out that most of the shows were being cancelled. We only got to play a couple of gigs in Armenia and Kiev."

While in Russia, the band was contacted by the record label, Melodya, who was looking to expand into rock after mainly producing classical music.

"Their recording studio was in this huge, renovated stone church outside of Moscow." Allison said. "We did a collection of songs that we thought Russians would like, but when we finished, they couldn't mix any of it because one of their machines was broken."

The band returned to the states in the early 90s to await the release of their album, which was to be sent as soon as it was mixed. More problems arose, however, when the tapes were accidentally sent to Kansas and the band eventually split up.

Allison formed the band again with a new line-up, which has worked out for the past few years since the return from Russia.

The band began playing throughout the Ann Arbor area, collaborating on shows with the local band, The Kind, and eventually began playing in Bowling Green and other places throughout Ohio.

Sticking mainly to their own original material, The Odd Sox have developed a unique sound all their own. In addition, the band also boasts a strong improvisational skill that includes band leader Frank Allison's storytelling jam session.

"We're notorious for breaking guitar strings," Allison said. "We began doing an acoustic set to keep things going while we restrung our guitars. Part of the acoustic deal was the stories that I'd tell."

And everything from blizzards, mad dogs and train accidents can be heard during the acoustic improvs.

The band is now looking to release a new album within the following months entitled, Little Critters and Other Litter, a collection of songs with a children's story feel.

Hopefully, for Frank Allison and The Odd Sox, along with their fans, they left their bad luck in Russia permanently.

Talk Radio tunes in to social issues

By James M. Brandon

Nearly all Americans have heard (or heard about) Rush Limbaugh. Conservatives cheer his political diatribes and liberals bristle as he preaches his message over the airwaves. Likewise, most Americans have had some exposure to Howard Stern. Numerous people regularly tune in to listen to the "shock jock" as he berates his callers, acts outrageous and toys with running for governor in New York.

Now it is time to listen to Barry Champlain. You won't find Barry on the air. He's a creation of Eric Bogosian, author of Talk Radio, playing this week in 411 South Hall, the University's "Elsewhere" space. Bogosian is one of the hottest playwrights around. His Sex, Drugs and Rock and Roll recently had a run at the University of Toledo; subUrbia just closed in Columbus; and his one-man show, Pounding Nails in the Floor with My Forehead, is enjoying success nationwide.

Talk Radio is perhaps Bogosian's best-known work, and much of this can be attributed to the film version that Oliver Stone made. But Talk Radio is at its most powerful in the format for which it was intended, the live theatre. Bryan Enk, a senior theatre major, directs what he refers to as "...the most difficult play [he's] ever encountered." He certainly hasn't pulled any punches.

Talk Radio takes place at a radio station in Cleveland during Barry Champlain's (John Klump's) wild radio talk show. Champlain's show attacks the problems of American society through the lens of its egomaniacal host. He has all of the answers, and constantly criticizes his callers because they do not. It doesn't matter if the callers agree with him or not, they are all targets for his contempt and scorn. Yet they keep calling, which is an issue that Champlain must contemplate.

Enk's production of Talk Radio runs suspiciously like a David Mamet show (he directed Mamet's Glengarry Glenn Ross at the University this summer). The dialogue is raw, the characters are slightly neurotic and overflowing with nervous energy, and the pacing is lightning fast. This works up to a point, but the pulse-pounding rhythm hardly leaves the audience a chance to react to the drama which is unfolding before them.

This spills over into the dialogue. The actors often deliver their lines with a breathless quality, as if they had just jogged up three flights of stairs. While little, if any, lines are lost to the audience, it is hardly plausible that a radio talk show host would be so careless with his words.

Yet the production does not fail to entertain. The rawness of the staging also opens the audience to a barrage of raw emotions which do, in fact, fill the audience with the "amusement and rage" that the director intended. Talk Radio is a play that is almost guaranteed to stir the emotions, and sensibilities, of the audience.

While Klump's performance sometimes seems as if it needs a Valium, he is as entertaining, witty and charismatic as Champlain. Klump's strength lies in the ability to roll his disgust, amusement and boredom into a neat little gesture or facial expression that perfectly conveys the conflicting reactions to his numerous, and often bizarre, callers.

Jason Gookins' portrayal of Kent, a whacked-out listener who looks and acts like the media's ideal of the ultimate "generation X slacker," deserves special recognition. Gookins hits all of the necessary notes in his performance, but does not push Kent over into a position where he steals the show. Controlled madness is the key, and Gookins delivers.

Other standouts include Jim Williams, Andy Hunsaker, Francesca Sunkin and Allyson Forest as the voices of Champlain's callers. Their vocal work and divergent characters are a primary agent in the show's success. It is a shame, though, that the director deprives us of a curtain call, where the audience can show its appreciation for a fine job. Ryan DeHeer is flat at times as Stu, Barry's sidekick, but comes through in key moments to help balance out the unpredictable host.

The striking thing about Talk Radio is that its picture of the profession is more true to life than it is exaggerated. Barry Champlain may not actually exist, but his voice can be heard on radios throughout the nation. Whether or not this is a good thing has yet to be determined.

The Power of Satire

By Aaron Epple

"Bulimia is so '87," —the popular yet cruel and superficial girl.

"He was drunk and he choked on his own vomit, actually we think he choked on someone else's vomit. There's no way to know. I'm not sure the police can dust for vomit," —Derek Smalls, bassist for Spinal Tap.

"I can't make decisions! I'm the president!" —Mel Brooks in the film Spaceballs.

"I'm a white male, age 18-49, everybody listens to me, no matter how dumb my ideas are."—Homer Simpson.

Of all the varieties of expression, satire, in its dual function of entertainment and criticism, has been one of the most prominent if not dangerous modes of artistic outlet.

Since early times, artists have used satire to criticize the social systems around them in a humorous fashion. If one doesn't know much about satire, it's safe to say that it paints a funny portrait of people without their masks. It also incorporates common group stereotypes and embellishes them to the point of absurdity.

Here are three examples of popular but satirical entertainment:

The Simpsons: That lovable little cartoon family who seem to survive the perils of existence by accident. Their personalities inherently mock Dan Quayle's "traditional family values." Bonehead father Homer instructs his anarchistic son, Bart, in the fundamentals of living. Bart learns that popularity is everything, weaseling out of responsibility is crucial and that working for a living is for "chumps." No wonder the kid dreams of destroying his school with giant mechanical spiders. The entire fabric of the characters and the storyline of the show relies on exaggeration of common stereotypes (the only East Indian in the show owns a convenience store and he seems to regard being blown away by robbers a necessary evil) and constant parody of American culture. There is the womanizing Mayor Quimby, the donut-eating and grossly incompetent police chief Wiggum, the arrogant, self-righteous Reverend Lovejoy, the grizzly, gossiping spinsters Patty and Selma who have a "lucrative hobby filing frivolous lawsuits" and the MTV-generation siblings, Bart and Lisa. In terms of generation, one must particularly take note of Lisa, who, despite her high intellect, loves the senseless violence on television cartoons.

Beavis and Butt-Head: The satirical value of this show is lost on most people because they fail to look beyond the surface. The show centers around two high school-age delinquents who are obsessed with destruction, sex, masturbation, and any other source of depravity. The show is often denounced because of the stupidity of its characters. Well, they're supposed to be stupid, that's kind of the point. One might argue that Beavis and Butt-Head are poking fun at the MTV audience, or the couch monsters who sit around and watch it all day. Another argument is that the show, like the The Simpsons, devalues fundamental American beliefs, like when President Clinton comes to town and makes them the "Students of the Year." After all, they speak so eloquently for being so "hormonally-challenged." Other incidents like when they spend time in jail and like it, or when they become best friends with a serial killer, are outrageous examples of what parents don't want their little "Cosby" kids to be. However, this is a show that no particular social value is assigned to. The appeal of it for most people is the blatant vulgarity and the raunchiness of their misadventures.

Heathers: This is one of the more popular films in recent times. It is, in essence, a dark comedy about young adults. The scene is a public high school; it could be any high school. The "Heathers" are an elitist group of the four most popular young women in school. The Heathers never condescend to speak to any students they deem beneath their character, which is just about everybody. Image and materialism are everything, personal enlightenment is nothing. The only high school boys they'd even consider dating are the football players, who are the complete stereotypical jocks. They are only interested in keeping a scorecard of their sexual encounters and putting down anyone weaker than themselves. They are, as Christian Slater's character puts it, "only good for date rapes and AIDS jokes." The film opens with and is narrated by, Veronica. Veronica is the latest inductee into the Heather clan. She immediately experiences moral conflicts as she watches the shallow treatment of others by her so-called friends and the Neanderthal sexual advances made by the football players. The entire motif of the film is to illustrate the cruelty of high school society. Most people can relate to it. People were broken up into cliques, or social classes. There was no mercy for the unpopular, and people only did things beneficial to their image and ego. Enter Jason Dean (Christian Slater), an arguably insane revolutionary who has made it his mission to cleanse the school of superficial filth. And he means it. Packing a large gun, he bumps off the first Heather and makes it look like suicide. The school population's reaction to the death was either indifference or fabricated sorrow. (If you had a classmate inexplicably die, you should remember those people who didn't really know the person; yet they were bawling their eyes out. Or you might remember all those idiots who went to the funeral just to get out of school.) Anyway, the death attracted the media, and many students pretended to know her just to land a spot on the six o'clock news. Dean's next target is the two football players. Again, the illusion of suicide was implemented—only with a twist. The football players left the world leaving their peers thinking they were repressed homosexuals who killed themselves out of a lack of understanding. Eventually, Veronica rejects Dean's violent solutions to societal problems, creating a conflict that culminates in Dean strapping dynamite to his chest and blowing himself up in an act of purity. One of his final phrases was, "the only place that people can genuinely get along with each other is in heaven."

Whatever satire has to offer us intellectually, it is not without its problems, the more obvious drawback being that satire was not tolerated for much of our world history.

"In the Middle Ages, satire could get you burned," said Jeannie Ludlow, a University professor of popular culture. "Excess of art has always gotten people in trouble. The government is used by the culture or by individuals to stifle things they consider subversive."

Line from Tom Robbins novel, "Jitterbug Perfume." —Wiggs
Dannyboy wanted to use psychedelic drugs to help relieve people of their fears and anxieties. Since it's hardly in the best national interest to relieve people of their fears and anxieties, the government sought to silence Dannyboy with a phony marijuana charge.

However, one must not forget that government officials and avid conservatives also use satire to relay their messages.

"Politicians realize it's easier to convey information through humor," said Solomon Davidoff, a former American Culture Studies graduate student. "Al Gore used satire when he was a guest on David Letterman."

Ardent viewers of Rush Limbaugh might recall seeing the "Bill Gump" sketch, where a retarded caricature of Bill Clinton was shown sitting on a bench drawing about what his mama used to say.

In modern society, satire is not oppressed so much as it is misunderstood. Many people fail to recognize satire when they see it.

"Satire is a vehicle for information as well as for misinformation," Davidoff said. "You have to remember that just because it's satirical does not mean it's not subtle. One time I wrote a mock preview for upcoming television programs. I mean, they were ridiculous spinoffs of actual shows, and my editor had to ask me if it was for real. There are some people who will believe everything. When I was four years old, I used to believe the fake ads in Mad Magazine. Unfortunately, some people never grow out of that."

Ludlow believes that modern satire is more indirect. She particularly referred to cultural satire, where it was making fun of a certain work in popular culture.

"The post-modern satire is unclear sometimes," she said. "I went to a film that parodied Hitchcock films. I didn't know Hitchcock that well, and my friends were laughing hysterically. Since I wasn't familiar with it, I didn't recognize it."

Whether it be cultural, political or otherwise, satire exists as a humorous critique of our lifestyles, value systems, and prejudices. And since one cannot eradicate all the evils of the world, the only thing one can do is laugh at it.

Rocket From the Crypt makes a stop in Toledo

By Aaron Weisbrod

On Wednesday November 15, the punk rock legend, Rocket From the Crypt, will be performing at The Asylum in Toledo.

This is the first time Rocket has been on tour in more than a year and the tour is in response to Rocket's new release "Scream, Dracula, Scream."

In a brief interview with Rocket's drummer, Atom, he told fans what they should be ready for at the show.

"Kick ass rock and roll...It's gonna be a good time. Expect the unexpected."

Although Rocket's music is as genuine punk

as it comes, many people

No football gear will be needed

are suprised to find that Rocket actually has a horn section that composes of a saxophone player and a trumpet player.

As can be heard on "Scream, Dracula, Scream" however, the horns do nothing but make the music thicker...and hence better.

Atom also wanted to let everyone know one other thing about the upcoming Asylum show.

"No football gear will be needed," he said.
